Free stock photos

There is one particular question coming from danibu clients all the time: "Where can I get good, free stock photos to strengthen my presentation or campaign with strong imagery?" Well, when it comes to sourcing great visuals, Google image should not be advised as the best place to start due to potential copyright infringement.

From the variety of websites with great, free quality imagery, one can be pulled out: PEXELS. This website helps beef up your next presentation, website or social media channels, so it's really worth checking out and saving it in your favorites. Thanks to Martijn Holtes | Just Connecting for this practical tip.

Communication and Tango?

I'm a Tanguera, I'm passionate about dancing Argentine Tango, which is even expressed through my company tagline: Making your Communication dance. I've seen many Tango events around the world. As a communication expert in the field, I've also attended or hosted a number of communication conferences. And what did I learn from both?

In Tango, as in the way we communicate, we all have our own styles. Sometimes they match, but more often they don't. Tango and Communication both are two-way: Sometimes you have to trust others to lead, and sometimes you're in charge. The art is to master the basic steps and enjoy the improvisation needed to really make a connection.

Through danibu, I've used this playful parallel and organized Tango workshops during leadership or team events for some of my clients. The flexibility, creativity, inspiration, empathy, concentration and togetherness it created for the participants not only improved their performance on the dance floor, but their overall communication confidence. Why not giving it a try at YOUR next team event and see for yourself: Once you find the rhythm, the (communication) magic will happen.
