Summer 2018 | update #09

I've been meaning to reach out to you for a while, but it's been pretty busy in the past couple of months, with a lot of exciting new danibu projects on board:

APPLIED MATERIALS, a US company, operating worldwide, assigned danibu to train its international Management teams across different locations in Germany to improve their Communication and Presentation skills. I really look forward to giving the 'Crystal Clear Messaging' sessions we just nailed down in the calendar

XL CATLIN, a global insurance and re-insurance company, assigned danibu to provide consulting and training services for their cross-functional teams at their Zurich (CH) Headquarters

FEDEX, the US delivery, courier and shipping company, just prolonged its cooperation with danibu for another year regarding their EU integration of TNT

The ExecTrack Academy delivers a Leadership program, focusing on professional and personal growth exclusively for professional high potential women. danibu now is an Academy faculty member and will be providing a Masterclass on the Art of Communication danibu is not only proud member of the two most relevant business associations for communicators - EACD and IABC - but also serving on IABC's EMENA board as of this week. I look forward to helping to connect (non)-members to ideas, people, professional learning (e. g. webinars), and best practice stories from diverse industries, sectors and disciplines. Thanks for having me on/in the board, IABC!

danibu heads this year's jury of the GOUDEN REIGERS, the 'Dutch corporate and webfilm awards'. They are the Oscars for company movies - so, if you are a creative/filming/production agency – why wait with submitting your best shot? I might announce your name at this year's Award Ceremony on 1 November in Amsterdam. "And the winner is ... "

PffffhhhhTime for a brain break now!

I wish all of you a breezy Summer (or Winter) vacation, with more than just time off from work, but a full experience of fun, passion and culture!

I've curated my list of top websites for free stock photos since I shared it in the danibu update #01 and recently added another highly recommendable one:

Unsplash - a Canadian copyright-free photography-sharing website, with over 70,000 contributing photographers and generating over 5 billion photo impressions per month!

I use it a lot for (training) presentations or newsletters and am not surprised it's cited as the world's leading photo website and one of the largest photo suppliers on the internet.

More techie stuff

You want to create your very own CV online, using free customizable templates? There's a bunch of hypnotizing CV-building software available on internet, and I find Visual CV a really easy one to use. If you want to put together a compelling resume that highlights your impressive academic credentials and work experience – Visual CV might be a good start.

If you prefer to showcase your work-life history offline through a good, old(fashioned) Word template and look for a beautiful example - drop me an email! I've created one recently– supported by an extra pair of good designer hands - and I'm more than happy to share the template (open file) with you.

Open-entry danibu trainings

If you like information or want to sign up for one of the remaining danibu trainings in 2018, click here. The September slot is fully booked, but there are still seats available on 18 - 19 October and 22 - 23 November 2018.

After the two intensive training days, you'll be able to beef up your:

1. Presentation and Communication foundations
2. Messaging techniques (no more writers block!)
3. (Slide) design skills
4. Stakeholder engagement knowledge
5. and intercultural sensitivity

Did you know?

... that the abbreviation GDPR (General Data Protection Regulation) stands for a new EU privacy law (effective since May 25, 2018) that requires explicit consent to receiving emailings like this danibu update?
